Continued house to house visitation in Park Street, keeping Christ before the people. Had a good talk with Mr Johnson, ^{of 105,} seeking to move him to a sense of his need, and his danger in neglecting the "great salvation." Mrs Johnson, of 79, was reserved and evasive. She was drawn out a little. In the case of Miss Low, at 111, there seemed to be the sense of her need, but she was unwilling to come to Christ. A ready response was given by Mrs Wiggley, of 67. She claimed to be keeping near the Lord. Miss Young, of 101, claimed to have a saving interest in Christ. So too Mrs Mayson, of 59. She felt the importance of bringing up her children for the Lord. The power of the truth was felt by Mrs Alston, of 83. She was pressing forward in the Xn way. Mrs McKay valued her privileges. She united heartily in prayer. Manifest appreciation for God's mercies was shown by Mrs Henderson, of 103. Mrs Sandford, of 113, took a deep interest in the message on "cleansing", and seemed desirous of living to God. The message was well received by Mrs Mowris, of 65. She was resolved to follow the Lord. (Hrs 7. Vis 16. Sk 1. Str 4. Hq 7. M 1. R 30)

Attended Mission mtg in the morning. In the afternoon visited amongst the sick and others. Mrs Turnbull, of York Street, was thankful for spiritual strengthening. So also was Mr Parkin, of York Street. The difficulties of the way were felt by Mrs Lindsay, but she was encouraged to look to the Lord for grace. Mr Hughes is in a weak state of body, but he is very teachable, and seems to value his privilege. The message of grace and sympathy was fully appreciated by Mrs Keenan. She is very helpless, and has much to contend with. Mr Lancaster, of Brown St., heard the word with acceptance, and seemed to be making progress. Had a good time with Mr Driscoll, of Green St. It was evident that he profited by the word and prayer.

Visited from house to house in Park and Dow Street, striving to deal faithfully with the people. Mr Parker, of 37, was not clear in his testimony. He was shown plainly his need of the inward witness. The need of being fully decided was shown to Mrs Smith, of 27. She was wakening. Miss Daubert seemed to realise her need, but something hindered her from coming to decision. The way of faith was opened up to Mrs Mc Nort, of 23. So also to Mrs Paterson. She was shown her danger in refusing to decide for Christ.

Testimony was given by W^m Unwin, of 51. She was encouraged to serve the Lord. W^m Clark, of 33, seemed to value his privilege, and to profit by the word. There was a cordial response from W^m Carter, of 49. She spoke with assurance of the Lord's keeping power, and seemed to be strong in faith. Gave the word of encouragement to W^m Minagall, of 107. So also to W^m Genders, who was very cordial, and requested me to call again. Had good hearings from Roman Catholics, W^m D^r Amyand was on the rock of Self. Tried to break away her ground, and to make plain to her her need of Christ as the only Saviour.

Continued house to house visitation in Dow Street, having some good opportunities for pressing home the gospel message. W^m Bartlett, of 63, realised her need of Christ, but would not come to decision, although she knew her risk. In the case of W^m ..

Romage there was a good deal of light, and the power of the truth was felt. However, she would not decide, but promised to consider the great matter. Great indifference was shown by Mrs Green, notwithstanding that she is in delicate health. Gave the word of warning to her and young woman who was present. Testimony was given by Mrs Archer, of 62. So too by Mrs Eddington, of 69. She felt her need of grace. Mr Williams, of 42, heard the word with acceptance, and seemed to value his privilege. A decided testimony was given by Mr McKnight, who felt that Christ was precious to him. Mr Cottrany, of 38, appreciated the message, and was encouraged to work for the Lord. The truth of the message was acknowledged by Mrs Colgan, R.C., of 57. A new interest was awakened in Mr Harrison, who promised to attend Cecil St Meth. Ch. The message was well rec'd by Mrs Schofield, of 34. So also by Mrs Davenport, who was desirous of serving the Lord.

Visited from house to house in Dow St and Clarendon Place, keeping Christ before the people. Pressed home the gospel message to Mrs Mitchell, of 33. She would not come to decision but promised to think about it. The message was well received by Mrs Abbott, of 43. Mrs Jacobs, of 49, felt the power of the truth. Her troubles had been sanctified to her good. A decided testimony was given by Mrs Marshall, of 37. She was deeply interested in spiritual things. Mrs Smith, of 45, claimed to have a saving interest in Christ. So also did young Mr Barber, of 12 C. R. The truth of the message was acknowledged by Mrs Woolley, of No 9. Mrs Cox, of 2, gave a ready response. She was encouraged to serve the Lord. Mrs Bradbury, of No 1, heard the word with sincere interest, and appeared to profit by it. Mrs Engoleit, of 8 C. Place, was fully convinced of her need, but was hindered by various difficulties. But she was brought to see that Christ could save to the uttermost, and that she would have a constant Intercessor in the presence of the Father. She felt that Christ had been knocking at her heart for 20 years past. She was enabled to come to Him in faith, and accept Him as her Saviour. Praise be to God.

Continued house to house visitation in Napier St, keeping Christ before the people. Opened up the word to Mr & Mrs Pickering, of 51. Mr P. was very attentive to the gospel invitation. Mrs Duncan, of 2, had not come to Christ, but promised to think about it. Tried to make the way of life plain to M. Dymond, of 21. So also to Mrs Brooks, of 35. She was hard to reach. The message was well received by Miss Evans, of 95. She claimed to be serving, the Lord. Mrs Duncan, of 29, claimed to have a saving interest in Christ. So also did Mrs White, of 7. She felt that she had had a large share of suffering, but she was reminded of Christ's greater sufferings and atonement. Mrs Naylor, of 93, was encouraged to work for the Lord. The power of the truth was felt by Mrs Trainea, of 91, but something hindered her. Mrs Lack, of 9, encouraged me by telling me of her husband being blessed and strengthened in the Lord through a little booklet with "Words of Comfort" which I had left at their home. The need of God's great salvation was quite realised by Mrs Young. It was evident that she felt the power of the truth, but she failed to come to decision. as a personal Saviour. So also Mrs Currier, R.C., of 111. The truth of the message was acknowledged by Mrs Phillips, R.C., of 121. Mrs Everett, R.C., of 137, seemed to feel the power of the truth, and acquiesced in the message. The word was well received by Mrs Gill, of 99. So also by Mrs Yonkin, who displayed a deep interest in spiritual things. Recd a good hearing from Mrs Wilson, of 127. She claimed to be making Xn progress. Mrs White, of 133, felt the power of the truth, and seemed to be profited.

Some were hard to reach. Mrs Owens, of 115, was attentive, and agreed with what was put before her concerning the truth. Gave the word of strengthening to W^m M Leod, of 97.

She was responsive. So also was Mrs Gordon, of 153. She seemed to be desirous of serving the Lord. (Hours 9. Vis 16. To 15. Pr 2. R 6 Mt 1 R 10)

Visited from house to house in Grant St, parts of Clarendon St, and in Gabo Place.
Mrs Gloster, of 297 G. St., heard the Word with acceptance. A decided testimony was given by Miss Johnston, of 299. Mrs Robertson, of 303, seemed to profit by the Word. There was a ready response from Mrs Warner, who seemed to value her privileges in Christ.
Mrs Mountford had been severely tried. She appreciated the Word of strengthening. So also did Mrs Cameron, whose faith is strong. Mrs Dawson, of 165 C. St., felt her need of Christ as a Saviour, and promised to seek the Lord. Pressed home to Mrs Johnston, of 167, her need of deciding for Christ.
She promised to think about it. Mrs Myerman, Jewess, gave earnest heed as Christ was presented to her as the true Messiah. Urged her to seek light from God. Mrs Fisher, of 1 Gabo Place, has been converted a year. She was profited by the Word, and promised to work for the Lord.
